Leona's nickname "Tatter" was given to her by her mother as a small child. When she was little she asked her mother if she could help her do a chore around the house and her mother said she was just a little potato to be able to do that big job right now; from that moment on all her brothers and sisters called her "Tatter," even up to her death. One of the things that I remember most about her was that she would always wear bright red lipstick and nail polish and she loved to shop and stop by roadside sales to see what she could find. She always had a good joke to tell and you could always count on getting plenty of good things to eat; as a child the good things meant cakes, cookies, pies, candy and so on. (Richard A. Paone)
